How far can you go?

The power of building teams

- If you try to do it on your own it is likely you will not achieve the fullness of your blueprint
- Relationships are the foundation of every Godly blueprint
- Here's a clue – Father, Son, Holy Spirit
- How do you relate to people?

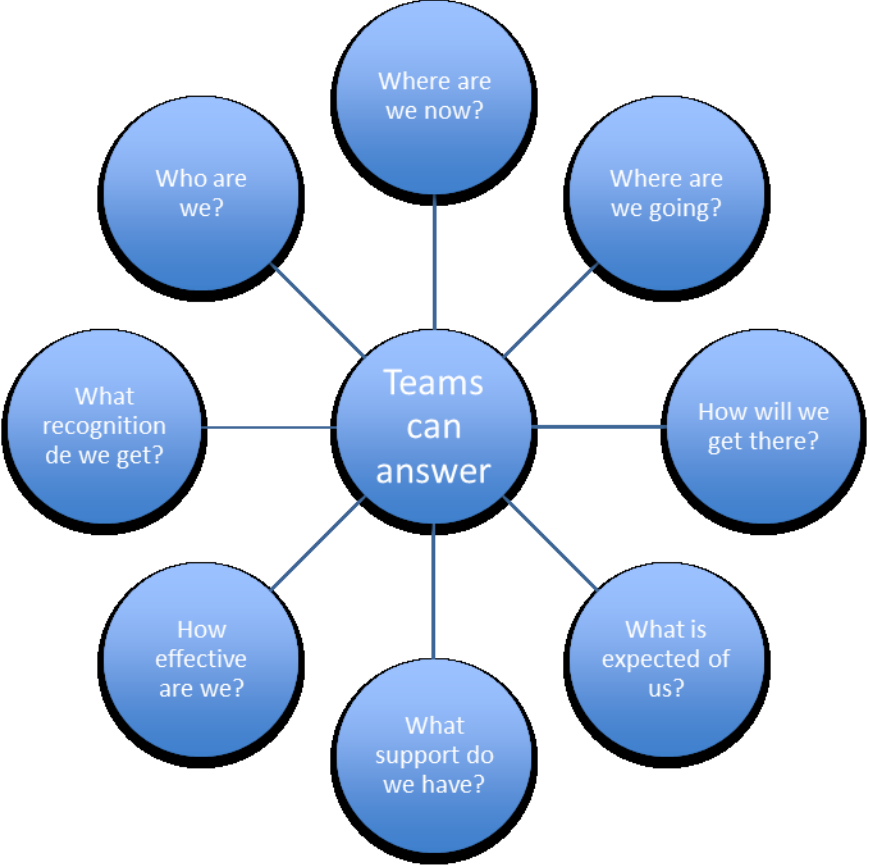

The power of building teams

- Remember everyone's free to "be"
- Everyone knows why they are there
- The team have a sense of being on a journey together – belonging
- The team know it is a process and works out its own sentience

The power of building teams

- The team members know the team is greater than the individual
- Praise is the fuel for the mission
- Everyone speaks, everyone has a voice
- Debate is productive

The power of building teams

The power of building teams

- People are your best and worst resource
- Have grace at all times
- “Never attribute to malice what you can attribute to ignorance!” – David Palmer

Actions to take next

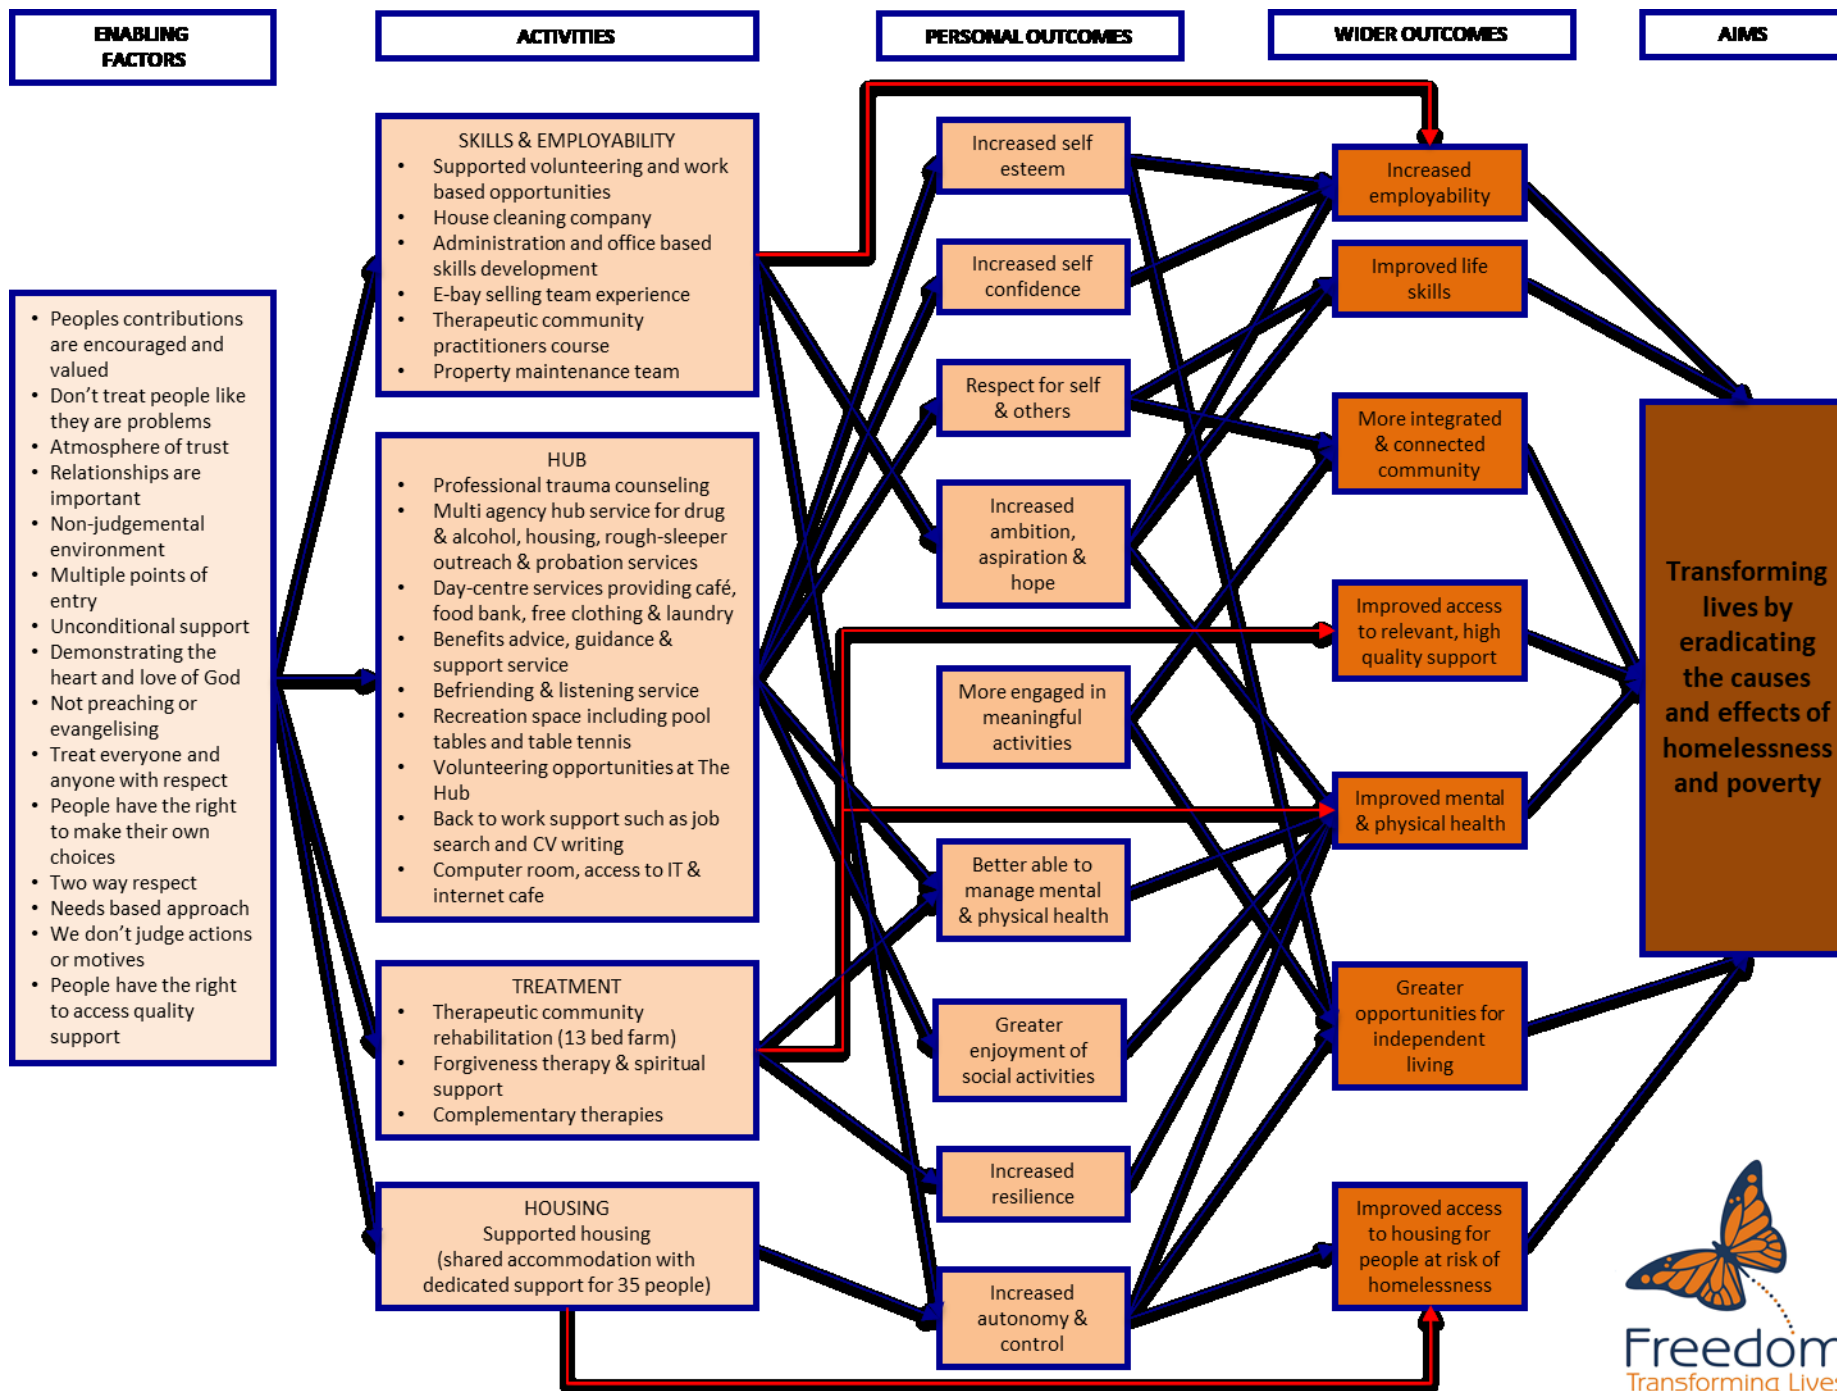

- Learn about the problem your blueprint addresses and its underlying issues:
- Seek God together for clarification – lean not on your own understanding!
- Use earthly research, yours or others – due diligence
- Consult with, and draw on, stakeholders' experiences – unity and agreement are essential

Next actions to take

- Once you have a written blueprint, share it
- Develop a “business plan”
- Be as diligent about your earthly government as you are about your heavenly government –
Christian Passion, Professional Excellence
- Never be too proud to get expert help when you need it
